

Josh Hartman

@joshprohartman

AGE: 24

HOMETOWN: Brooklyn, New York

Riding for Star Track Cycling, Josh Hartman is one of America's up-and-coming track sprinters as he aims for the Paris 2024 Olympic Games. He always knew he wanted to be a professional cyclist but suddenly saw that potentially come to an end after suffering a severe injury in 2013. After the crash, Josh's first thought was how soon he could get back on the bike. He persevered and got back into racing... and winning. He landed on several National Championship podiums in 2016 and then brought home the stars-and-stripes in 2017, winning the Team Sprint event at the 2017 Elite Track National Championships. He repeated the feat in 2018.

Kayla Hankins

@kaylahankins1

AGE: 19

HOMETOWN: Scottsdale, Arizona

Kayla is one of the shining stars coming through the Track Sprint pipeline. She started racing triathlon at age 7, and soon realized that she loved to race bikes. She got involved with a local club called Strada Racing and when they saw how much she liked going fast, she was introduced to track cycling. She won her first National title in 2014 at the VELO Sports Center in Carson, CA and that was just the beginning for her. She went on to win several more Junior Track National Championships and attended the World Championships in 2019 with USA Cycling. She's now a freshman at UCLA and riding for LUX and the USA Cycling Sprint Program.

Dalton Walters

@daltwalt_

AGE: 24

HOMETOWN: Richardson, Texas

Dalton Walters got into cycling through the varsity cycling team at his high school in Dallas, Texas. He attended college for one of the best collegiate cycling teams in the country, Colorado Mesa University. After graduating from college with a degree in Mechanical Engineering, he started working with Toyota Racing Development. Dalton is part of the USA Cycling Track Sprint program and is training for the Paris 2024 and LA 2028 Olympic Games.

